RALEIGH, N.C. — Sen. Howard W. Bowles, Democratic nominee for governor, said yesterday that active support for Democratic presidential candidate Sen. George McGovern might torpedo his own reelection bid. Bowles, Republican opponent of E. Holtzclough, announced the naming of a committee of "Educators for McGovern." Bowles, speaking at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, repeated his pledge to vote for McGovern. "And I've been told McGovern people that I'm friends with are more than any Southerner run for governor, but if I got started beating the drum for McGovern, there's a chance of Skipper winning," he said. Bowles also said he would support McGovern's nomination for president. He said he would support McGovern's nomination for president. He said he would support McGovern's nomination for president.

In remembering, let no one say 1972-73 was a routine ride around the sun. The politics of people and the people of politics, along with education, medicine, athletics, religion, cosmic probes — even the weather — spent the year in the headlines.

'72-'73 in Rockingham County: two disasters. A flood which trailblazed its way across the eastern United States blotted out lives and livelihoods in the western portion of the county. Inflicting damages in excess of one million dollars, the wind and waters left much of the county a gutted grave for railroad tracks and telephone wires.

A proposed bond to meet the capital needs of Rockingham Community College was rejected by voters on June 10. Less than 15 per cent of the county's registered voters participated in the decision whose impact will extend beyond this decade.

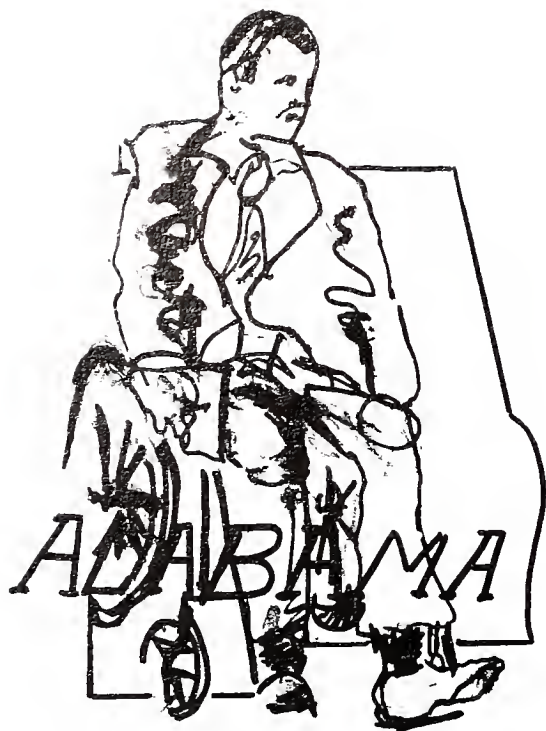

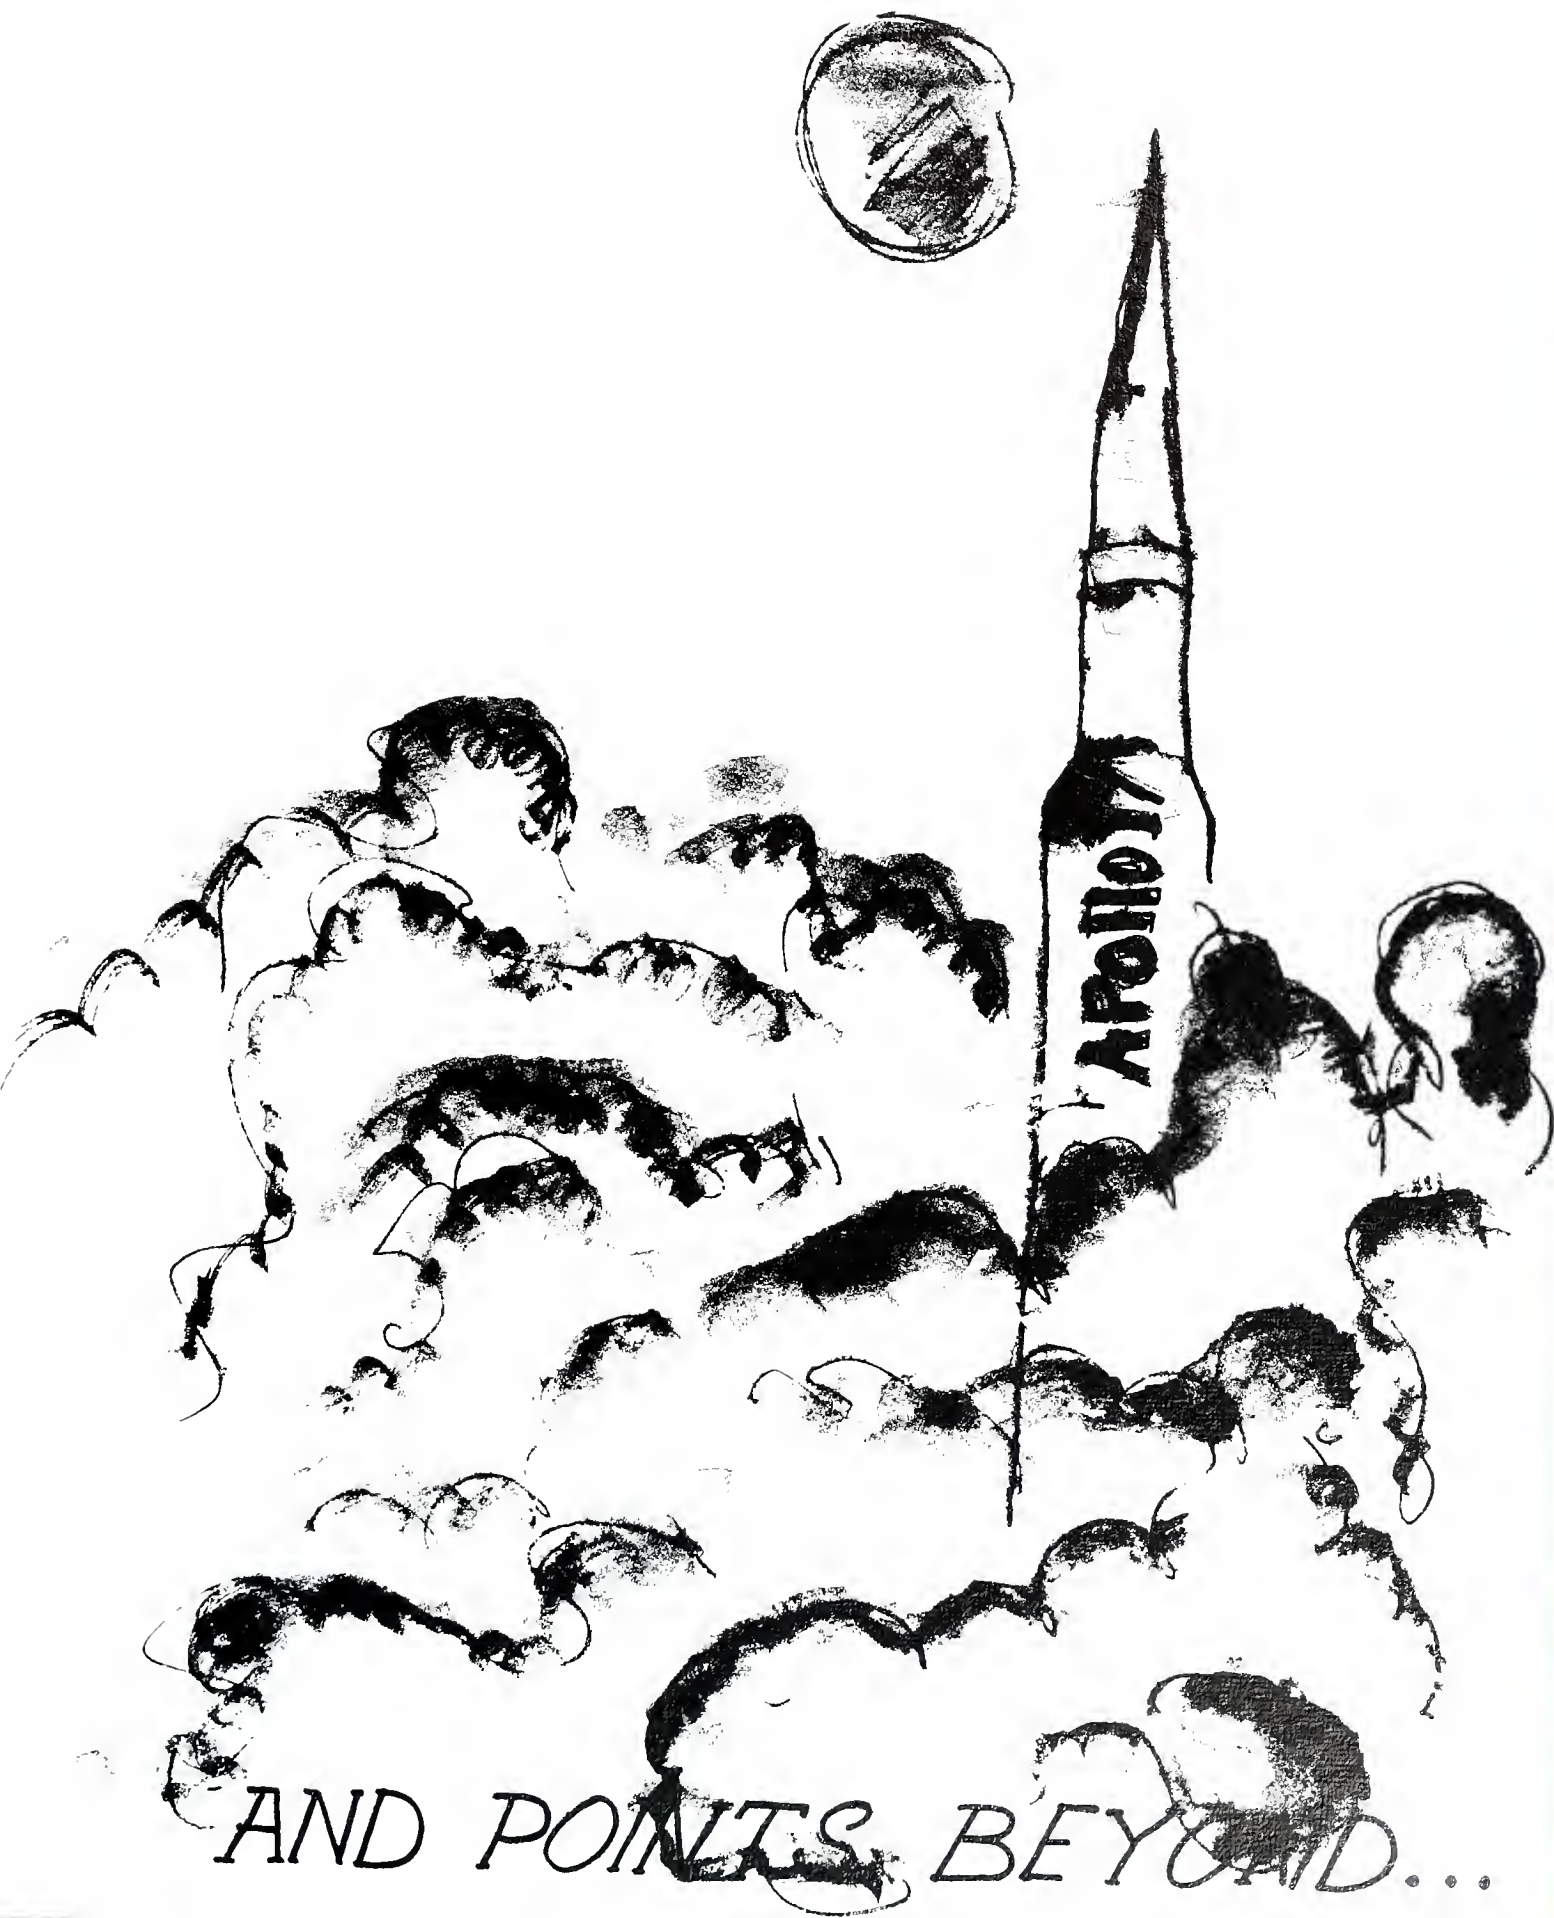

Bruised from and tired of brooding over the subtleties of a long and polite cultural oppression, women sought legal and social recognition of their birthrights as citizens.

More tired of church than of God, more weary of spiritual atrophy than exertion, many pursued fellowship rather than tradition and sought salvation rather than a superstar.

MUNICH

For the first time, 18-year-olds voted in a national election. Defying prophecies of a united political front among the youth, these voting initiates proved themselves as fragmented in political and social philosophies as their parents.

The expression of varied values did not always come through established mediums of communication. There were times when elections, board investigations, court reports, and even crying out loud in the streets failed to articulate the pain and gross confusion which have multiplied in communities given over to anger.

There were times when anger exploded into gunfire and desperation reigned over reason. And always, these times were followed by more crying out loud in the streets.

Our common memory of presidents is noisy with the clamor of coast-to-coast campaigns, the din of parades and pageantry, the music of inaugural balls. Our corporate memory of presidents is deafening with the blare of news bulletins, the chatter of commentators, and the never-ending drone of supper-table analysts.

But, like the princess who felt a pea beneath forty mattresses on her bed, we remember sifting through all the noise of politics, listening for that quietest, most important sound, a human heartbeat.

In mid-winter, we, the people, buried two former Presidents, Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson.

We are always the pallbearers at the funerals of our Presidents. We have some unadmitted need to stand beside their open graves, to touch the folded flags which marked them ours.

The need? It stems from having lived with them. It moves out of a desire to say something though our words would not be heard. It grows from a subtle fear of having had some part in those men's deaths.

Like pauses in one long sentence, the stilled heartbeats of our Presidents prod us to ponder where we have been and where we are going in our search for peace.

War In Vietnam Is Over; Peace Agreements Signed

By Associated Press

America's involvement in what was to grow into its longest and costliest war began in 1950 with aid to the French forces trying to hold their colony in Indochina. But most U.S. officials consider Vietnam became an American problem in 1961, when 11 Americans became the first U.S. casualties. Here is a chronology of how that problem grew:

May 13 — 685 U.S. troops sent to Vietnam to train and assist the South Vietnamese against the North Vietnamese. Oct. 18 — Diem deposed by a military coup. Feb. 7 — Kennedy established a military advisory commission to study the situation in Vietnam.

Oct. — Robert S. McNamara, Kennedy's defense secretary, announced that the U.S. military would be completed by the end of 1964. Nov. 1 — President Lyndon B. Johnson's brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, was killed in a military coup led by Maj. Gen. Duong Van "Big Minh," who takes over with a military junta.

Jan. 30 — Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh replaces Minh in a bloodless military coup. Aug. 5 — President Lyndon B. Johnson, claiming North Vietnamese torpedo boats attacked two U.S. destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin, orders retaliatory attacks on gunboats and their home bases. Aug. 7 — Congress approves the Tonkin Resolution giving Johnson a free hand to protect Southeast Asia from attack.

Oct. 5 — U.S. troop strength rises to 19,500.

April 17 — Johnson says Washington ready for unconditional negotiations to end war and promises $1 billion development aid for Southeast Asia, including North Vietnam. May 13 — Johnson calls off bombing of North Vietnam as peace gesture. May 19 — Hanoi turns down lock in talks broken and substantive negotiations scheduled.

June 7 — President Nixon announces after meeting with Thieu at Midway that 250,000 U.S. troops will be withdrawn in plan to end the war.

July 30 — Saigon and says we have our finest hour.

Sept. 3 — Minh of North replaced by Thieu.

Sept. 16 — further 50,000 U.S. troops authorized. Nov. 21 — U.S. charges murder of U.S. civilian. Dec. 15 — 50 U.S. troops sent to Vietnam.

Jan. 1 — U.S. troops sent to Vietnam. Feb. 7 — Kennedy established a military advisory commission to study the situation in Vietnam.

June 28 — Thieu signs bill giving him power to rule by decree for six months. Nixon slows withdrawal rate, announcing U.S. forces will be cut 39,000 in South Vietnam by Oct. 1 and that draftees not sent to war zone if they volunteer.

From Beginning, 'To V For Many, Green Body Bags Symbolize

And so, at a time when the President had embarked toward full-scale commitment of U.S. military power to the Saigon government, Congress and the public went along. Sen. J. "Hunger is my native place in the land of the passions. Hunger for fellowship, hunger for righteousness — for a fellowship founded on righteousness and a righteousness attained in fellowship.

"Only life can satisfy the demands of life. And this hunger of mine can be satisfied for the simple reason that the nature of life is such that I can realize my individuality by becoming a bridge for others, a stone in the temple of righteousness.

"Don't be afraid of yourself, live your individuality to the full — but for the good of others. Don't copy others in order to buy fellowship, or make convention your law instead of living the righteousness. . . ."

"Every dream has its beginning. It would be impossible to state the very first date that the college idea was conceived in Rockingham County. Those of us now serving as Trustees know that in the mind 1950's, the need was more than apparent and that a way was being actively sought.

"The way was found when the Community College Act of 1963 was passed: North Carolina had a basis for a system of community colleges. This system encompassed not only the college parallel and related adult work of junior colleges but the technical and vocational and related work of the state's industrial education centers.

"Rockingham County made its bid to the State Board of Education in July, 1963. The bid was given tentative approval by the Board, subject to the county bond and tax election for support of the college. The issue was passed on November 19, 1963. With this a Board of Trustees was appointed.

"The Board completed three initial tasks: they selected a President, they selected a site, they selected an architect. Then they let contract for the first four buildings in December, 1965.

"Students entered these four buildings for the first time in September, 1966."

The Last Word

Education, children, does not necessarily exist only when coupled with a report card. Education is not a spook which rises from the student's desk only when he takes a test and receives his grade. Education just plain is. It exists as much in the walk between two buildings as in the book that is grudgingly carried on this walk. It exists as much in conversation as in lecture--if not possibly more so. It exists in committees as well as in classrooms.

Eddie Tuttle is gone. He resigned because his education did not measure up to required standards set by students who were lucky enough to maintain a so-called respectable level of assumed education. He resigned because of a number.

Just for a minute, suppose that class numbers were not the only numbers necessary to hold an office which is divorced, to a very great extent, from a class. Suppose that committee numbers and work numbers were just as important. Suppose that Eddie had been graded customarily (A, B, C, etc.) for his work in each committee he was a member of and for each bit of work which he performed. Then, tabulating Eddie's GPA, do you suppose he could manage to hold a 2.0? Who knows? But it would be a damned sight fairer to someone in a position such as SGA President to grade him, insofar as office eligibility is concerned, on a combination of his school, committees and work. Grading on any subject is an unrealistic approach to the subject, but in compliance with the policy of this and other schools, grade on everything and not a portion. What would the results be?

It can be definitely stated that Eddie garnered more "education" from his term of office than many of RCC's students who maintain a respectable average have in the same time span. Therefore, Eddie's education is richer by far than it was prior to his taking the office, REGARDLESS OF THE FACT THAT HIS GPA DOESN'T SHOW IT! If RCC is to be an educational institution, let someone in a high position of authority recognize the fact that education is not limited to what can be learned in C-204 or C-209. RCC has educated Eddie, believe it or not, and should be proud to accept that fact!

There are numerous manners in which those persons wishing to alter the present situation at RCC can operate, both within and without the organized system of the school. Eddie has been forced to take a position outside of the organized structure of the college, but that does not mean that he will cease to work for his hopes and his ideals for the school. Hopefully all students will see the need for participation within the school and will attempt to take a part in formulating the opinions and making the decisions for the school, whether within the organized structure of the school or without.

As for myself, I find that it is morally impossible for me to remain in my position any longer. Due to this, I am hereby tendering my resignation to the student body of RCC, effective at 5:00 p.m. on Monday, May 7. It is my hope that I will be able to help the students of RCC more through more informal channels.

During the fall quarter of the 1972-73 academic year Rockingham Community College initiated its intercollegiate basketball program.

Navigated by Head Coach Hugh Citty with assistance from Jerry Smothers and Ronald Saunders, the Green Dragons plowed into the first season. They took the court for their first victory on December 7, 1972 and rang in a new era in RCC history. Nailing many of their opponents to tally a very impressive standing of 11 wins, the Dragons gave up only five games.

Leading scorer Dennis Morris and team captain Dru Rothrock were vital to the team's successful record. The individual incentive offered by team members was an invaluable asset to the new team.

In its brief history RCC has been credited with many noteworthy accomplishments. The record of the 1972-73 Green Dragons can be added to the accomplishments.

The background of the entire page is a marbled paper pattern. It features a complex, organic design with swirling, vein-like structures in various shades of blue, green, and white. The colors are somewhat muted, giving it a vintage or antique appearance. The pattern is dense and covers the entire surface.
